Title: Arms Transportation – Carrying Case.

The Problem:

The 2010 Deer hunting Regulations pamphlet

Whereas: The firearm must be unloaded and completely enclosed within a carrying case de-signed to carry a firearm when in or on any vehicle whether moving or stationary.

Whereas: Carrying cases are not and have never been designed to be a safety device. Restricting what may be qualify, as a carrying case is unreasonable. A carrying case sole purpose is to protect the contents from damage. Therefore any carrying case that totally encloses the firearm would meet the requirements for arms transportation. Any case weather homemade, recycled, ex. an old bow case for shotgun or rifle or pistol , or an old hand bag for pistols would be legal for transportation of a firearm.

Be it resolved:
I request the definition of a carrying case be modified to read. "All firearm must be unloaded and completely enclosed within a carrying case. And the words designed to carry a firearm be removed . And the regulations return to the wording used for over 40 years
