Subject:	Foxconn Illegal Water Draw on Lake Michigan
Date:	Thursday, March 15, 2018 9:42:16 AM

Foxconn has their bags packed and are ready to roll into Wisconsin to use water for their manufacturing process and this is totally illegal!

The Great Lakes are protected with laws of water usage and Foxconn doesn't fit the bill. Furthermore, their operation isn't even on the perimeter of Lake Michigan.

What's to stop the other states and Canada with perimeters on the Great Lakes from doing the same thing once Wisconsin starts supplying water for corporations/money?

Don't allow Foxconn to use Lake Michigan water. This will end up being a bad decision, but then it will be too late and Walker will be long gone. You've got the right to close this process down and the rules for taking Great Lakes water are already on the books, so just abide by them. Wisconsin environmental laws have protected us thus far and were set in stone for a reason. You can't just come along and make your own rules with these precious waterways. Good drinking water will be in short supply soon and your decision on this matter is going to affect how soon that will be.

Do the right thing for Wisconsin and the people who live here. We don't want Foxconn using and abusing our environment.

Sincerely,
Bridget Palecek
