To the DNR,

I am writing with my concern about the possible pollution of Lake Michigan by Foxconn. It is the DNR's responsibility to the people of Wisconsin to protect the Great Lakes, especially Lake Michigan, from abuse and pollution. Millions of people depend on fresh drinking water now and for future generations.

Foxconn will not be located within the Great Lakes Basin. It will be built in Mount Pleasant, and the water diverted for public consumption, is going to a private, foreign corporation. This is totally against what is required by the Great Lakes Compact.

How can Wisconsin give away 40% of the 7 million gallons of Lake Michigan water daily to a company that will pay NO taxes, and could ultimately return that water CONTAMINATED back into the lake? Foxconn has been very unspecific about how the water will be used, treated, or managed. Will they be exempt from certain requirements?

The DNR needs to be held accountable to follow the rules in the Great Lakes Compact, and protect our beautiful Lake Michigan and all the Great Lakes from more pollution, especially from a foreign corporation.

Please do your job, the Great Lakes are your responsibility to protect for us ALL!

Sincerely,

James & Barbara Pellowski
