To whom it may concern (and that should be all of us):

The Walker administration's kow-towing to Foxconn for the sake of jobs which do not yet exist must have its limits.

OK, we need jobs, so here is $3 or $4 billion. OK, whatever.

But giving them a huge chunk of Lake Michigan?

Water is perhaps the greatest asset Wisconsin possesses. Walker's history has been to give away longstanding wealth for a quick buck, again and again. (See the Milwaukee Co. Park system for an early example.)

Enough. It's mine too. Don't try to give away Lake Michigan.

Sincerely,
Mark Hembree
