Establishing funding to enhance the birding public's greater access to the state's numerous unique environmental resources with an annual stamp program.

The state of Wisconsin has a large active community of concerned citizens that passionately watch birds as a recreational activity. The opportunities for the pursuit of their recreation could be greatly enhanced by the development of a stamp program through revenue. This stamp would be similar to the many types of specific current activity stamps that other citizens or visitors to the state contribute to for the pursuit of recreation.
