Calendar slot of Spring Crow Season

The Concern:

Wisconsin's spring crow season generally begins in January and closes in mid March. Some other northern states open their spring crow seasons later so as to continue the season through the last weekend of March and occasionally through the first days of April. This season shift of approximately two weeks is favored by some crow hunters as it would extend crow hunting opportunities into more favorable temperatures experienced in early spring. Likewise to other migratory species, crow season length is regulated by federal agency but states have flexibility in setting of season timing.

Do you support a delayed start to the spring crow season so as to allow the spring season to continue through the last weekend of March?
