

Dry Cleaner Environmental Response Fund (DERF) Program

What Is It?

- Industry-developed initiative to provide financial protection for drycleaners should contamination occur from their operations (State Legislature passed in 1997)
- A reimbursement program – with cost controls including no financing costs/attorney costs, multiple-phase bidding requirements with DNR project manager approvals required
- Funded by 2.8% fee on drycleaning gross receipts, $5/gal perchloroethylene and $.75/gal other solvents fee paid by chemical distributors
- Collect approximately $1.5 million/year
- Drycleaner owner and operators and the property owner of a licensed facility are eligible
- Maximum award is $500,000 per facility
- Sliding scale deductible based on cost of response actions
- 13 states have similar programs

How Does It Work?

- Dept. of Revenue (DOR) collects fees from licenses drycleaners
- DOR has 1 position from fund for licensing
- DNR has 3 positions from fund (1 auditor/2 hydrogeologists)
- When contamination is discovered, drycleaner notifies DNR and follows process for conducting cleanups
- DNR staff approve selected bidders; provide technical assistance/program management
- Responsible parties must conduct cleanup consistent with ch. NR 700 cleanup rule series/get reimbursed as specific milestones are reached
- Application to the program must be made before August 30, 2008

Who Are The Clients?

- Wisconsin Fabricare Institute (Brian Swingle, Exec Dir.; Don Gallo – attorney)
- Governor's Council on DERF (four drycleaners, one equipment supplier, one consultant, one chemical manufacturer)
- Individual drycleaners with contamination/property owners who are eligible

Program Status

- 280 licensed drycleaners in the state
- 151 sites with investigations initiated
- 57 sites with complete investigations
- 30 sites closed
