Sector Development Specialists

Ultimately, what will differentiate Wisconsin from other states, and differentiate Wisconsin businesses from other competitors?

We believe it will be the partnership between our private and public sectors, the coordination and speed of government support, and the extent of innovative programs that can adapt to very diverse business needs. Our most important business sectors are our focus for building working relationships between Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) and the sector that yield both environmental and economic value. Sector development specialists are charged to provide specialized support for their respective sectors, to walk in the shoes of those businesses, listen to business needs and understand sector trends.
