Prohibition of Wildlife Killing Contests

Contests that award prizes for killing the most or the heaviest animals or by accruing points for each animal in a certain time period should be prohibited in Wisconsin. They have brought negative attention to hunters from the general public, and threaten the image of all hunting.

Awarding prizes for killing the most or the heaviest animals also violates multiple tenets of the North American Model of Wildlife Conservation, including number four, “Wildlife can only be killed for a legitimate purpose,” number two, “Markets for game are eliminated,” and number six, “Science is the proper tool for discharge of wildlife policy.” Research has found the random and mass killing of native carnivores does not protect livestock and does not increase deer or turkey numbers.

Prohibiting wildlife killing contests would not affect existing laws and regulations allowing the lethal removal of predating animals, including the regulation stating, “landowners do not need a license to shoot or trap unprotected species causing damage or nuisance.” Nor would it affect regulated deer hunting or “Big Buck” contests, or fishing tournaments.

As outdoor recreation demographics change, is important to make sure that the Wisconsin public views hunting as ethical, sporting, and supported by science-based wildlife management principles.

Would you therefore support the Wisconsin Conservation Congress working with the DNR and state Legislators in prohibiting killing contests for furbearer, small game, and game bird species?
